COURSE DESCRIPTION
ENG 132 – Research and Argument: “Continued study and application of the writing process and the skills of writing with a focus on the forms of argumentative writing and on research methods, such as gathering, evaluating, summarizing, synthesizing and citing source information. Prerequisite: C in English 131. Must earn a C or higher to be admitted to any English 200-level course.” College Bulletin, 2012-2013.

ENGL 1302 “Research and Argumentation” (3 credits) typically meets three times each week in 50-minute segments or twice each week in 75-minute segments for 15 weeks, and also meets for a 2-hour final examination. Students will read and study the principles of argumentation (both classical and contemporary), practice analysis of published arguments, and then apply these principles to their own individual arguments that grow out of their career fields and interests. In addition, students will learn best practices for research in order to inform themselves about the arguments they engage, and they will learn how to incorporate the needed evidence to support their claims/positions. The third component of the course requires students to understand that there are various methods of source documentation; in this course, they will engage the MLA documentation method and observe it in their written productions. Students will practice and (to some extent) master the writing process, producing multiple drafts of a summary analysis, annotated bibliography, a synthesis analysis and an extended argument of their own. These activities average at a minimum 6-8 hours of work outside class each week to prepare for and participate in this course.

About This Class
You are attempting a daunting task. Along with all of the other facets of your busy lives, you have embarked upon a journey to transform yourselves into better writers – in less than four months. Successfully navigating the path you have chosen will require certain deeds on your part. This goal may best be accomplished by activities such as focused, analytical reading, serious discussion, forming ideas that are well-considered, crafting arguments that are logical, and drafting, revising, and editing our work until it communicates coherently what we intend.

Writing is an active process. Despite the fact that we are often called upon to submit our best efforts to date, rarely is any piece of writing ever truly “finished.” Most, if not all, written work can be improved upon. As noted, an important part of this process is reading, in a focused and critical manner, the best efforts of other writers and discussing what we find there. Therefore, this class will consist of equable amounts of reading, discussion, and writing. This course is not a literature class; however, analyzing the written arguments of other writers can help us understand why we write and how to do so effectively.

Regarding the aspects of writing that can be taught, one-half is science, and the other is art. Although it takes application, the science can be learned; art, however, requires the doing, the act; the only way to become a good writer is to write, write, and write! The nature of this class demands active participation, and you will see results if you put forth effort. When I ask you to create a draft - do it! When I ask you to critique or revise a passage, do it! No excuses. I say again, the art requires the doing. Those who do not accomplish the obvious and expected tasks associated with this process cannot truly claim to care about their writing or this class. No doubt their grades will reflect this fact.

Occasionally I ask you to work collaboratively, with minimal supervision. If you do not make good use of these sessions, then you are hurting yourself. I expect you to engage in the class discussions by asking questions and offering thoughtful comments relevant to the issue at hand, and to do so in a courteous manner. The nature of our endeavor makes rudeness or abusive language intolerable. That being said, you will have some (hopefully) interesting and spirited discussions with individuals from a variety of backgrounds, and you may hear something you do not like. If you feel yourself getting offended, first remind yourself how fortunate you are to live in a country where people have the right to speak what they believe to be the truth, and then proceed to tell them exactly how they are wrong.

Texts and Materials.

- A Good Grammar/Research Handbook
- Pen and Paper
- USB Drive

Course Requirements

In this class, you will be asked to produce logical, thoughtful, well-composed pieces of argument. These assignments are based on various topics that will emerge from the assigned readings and our in-class discussions.

These papers will include, but are not necessarily limited to, a synthesis and critical analysis essay, wherein you summarize and analyze the argument of another; a comparative analysis essay, wherein you discuss the similarities and differences of multiple arguments on a single topic; a critical analysis, wherein you analyze the goals and tactics of a visual text (film); a researched argument, wherein you argue a particular view of a literary work; and a final exam in the form of an in-class timed essay wherein you analyze and explain a piece of poetic text.

All papers composed outside of class require MLA format. No late work will be accepted. Students are required to submit an electronic copy, on time, through D2L to the Turnitin comprehensive plagiarism detector. Failure to do so will result in a failing grade (0 points) on the paper in question. Again, no late work will be accepted.

Course Calendar
The class will be divided into four sections based on the four major paper assignments. Each assignment will take approximately four weeks to complete. The film analysis will take slightly less time; the synthesis and critical analysis will take slightly longer. The general schedule, however, will be one major paper due each month, along with the relevant daily work such as rough drafts, peer critiques, thesis submissions, et cetera.

Grading Policy
Semester grades will be the sum of the major paper grades, the daily grades, and the final exam. Each major paper will constitute one grade, with grammar, content, and style contributing equally to each grade. Each major paper is worth a maximum of twenty (20) points; the final exam is worth a maximum of ten (10) points, and each daily grade is worth a maximum of one (1) point for a total of one hundred (100) possible points. After your semester grade is determined, attendance points will be deducted or added. Feel free to come and see me about your writing, your grade, or for any other reason, during office hours.

Hybrid Course Format for Fall 2021
This course follows a hybrid format wherein approximately two-thirds of our time will be spent interacting via Zoom. The class will be split into two groups. One group will attend class in person on Monday and via Zoom on Wednesdays, and one group will attend via Zoom on Mondays and in-person on Wednesdays. The entire class will attend via Zoom on Fridays. During ZOOM meetings, students are expected to be attentive and actively participating (answering questions, using chat, completing activities, etc.). You will be expected to have your camera on for the entire ZOOM meeting. Your microphone should be muted unless you are speaking. Any disruptive behavior, as determined by the instructor, will not be allowed, and students may be asked to leave the meeting depending on severity. Please use common sense and be respectful. If Zoombombing occurs, I will end the meeting, and I will email you via D2L Brightspace with further instructions. This is a web-enhanced class. You will need to visit BRIGHTSPACE by D2L regularly to keep up with assignments, contact the instructor, and receive supplemental information for your success in the course. Classroom activities, homework assignments, other instructional materials, and grades will all be posted in BRIGHTSPACE.

Attendance
Punctual attendance (physical and mental) is required, and roll will be checked at the beginning of the class. If you are not in class when roll is checked, expect to be counted absent. If you fall asleep in class, expect to be counted absent. If you text or engage in non-class-related activities, expect to be counted absent. Notes from parents, grandparents, doctors, coaches, etc. are not required and will make no difference with regard to attendance. If you are not in class, then you are absent. I consider all absences to be “excused,” which means you will have the opportunity to make up any daily work missed due to absence. You have three absences before your grade begins to suffer; use them how you wish. Because, however, group discussion is such an important element of this class, excessive absences will adversely affect your grade. One point will be deducted from your semester grade for each absence after the third. Any student who misses more than three weeks of class will receive a failing grade for the course, as per the university attendance policy. Students with perfect attendance will receive two (2) points toward their final grade.

Acceptable Student Behavior
Classroom behavior should not interfere with the instructor's ability to conduct the class or the ability of other students to learn from the instructional program (see the Student Conduct Code, policy D-34.1). Unacceptable or disruptive behavior will not be tolerated. Students who disrupt the learning environment may be asked to leave class and may be subject to judicial, academic, or other penalties. This prohibition applies to all instructional forums, including electronic, classroom, labs, discussion groups, field trips, etc. The instructor shall have full discretion over what behavior is appropriate/inappropriate in the classroom. Students who do not attend class regularly or who perform poorly on class projects/exams may be referred to the Early Alert Program. This program provides students with recommendations for resources or other assistance that is available to help SFA students succeed.

Academic Integrity (A-9.1)
“Academic dishonesty” includes both cheating and plagiarism. Cheating includes but is not limited to (1) using or attempting to use unauthorized materials to aid in achieving a better grade on a component of a class; (2) the falsification or invention of any information, including citations, on an assigned exercise; and/or (3) helping or attempting to help another in an act of cheating or plagiarism. Plagiarism is presenting the words or ideas of another person as if they were your own. Examples of plagiarism are (1) submitting an assignment as if it were one's own work when, in fact, it is at least partly the work of another; (2) submitting a work that has been purchased or otherwise obtained from an Internet source or another source; and (3) incorporating the words or ideas of an author into one's paper without giving the author due credit. (Please read the complete policy at http://www.sfasu.edu/policies/academic_integrity.asp) Academic dishonesty carries a very heavy penalty: a definite F (in the form of zero (0) points), on the paper in question, a probable F in the class, and possible expulsion from the university.
Withheld Grades Semester Grades Policy (A-54)
Ordinarily, at the discretion of the instructor of record and with the approval of the academic chair/director, a grade of WH will be assigned only if the student cannot complete the course work because of unavoidable circumstances. Students must complete the work within one calendar year from the end of the semester in which they receive a WH, or the grade automatically becomes an F. If students register for the same course in future terms the WH will automatically become an F and will be counted as a repeated course for the purpose of computing the grade point average.

English 132 Student Learning Outcomes
At the completion of this course, students will be able to:

- Locate, evaluate, and employ a variety of sources, accurately and ethically, in a multi-step, persuasive essay (Critical Thinking);
- Appraise and utilize a variety of standardized genre, discipline, medium, and occasion situation-specific conventions (Critical Thinking);
- Understand the role of personal responsibility in the inevitable choices involved in the composition process, in the evaluation of one’s own writing and the writing of other students, in the ethical use of ideas and information, and in the critical evaluation of all assigned texts (Personal Responsibility);
- Recognize the collaborative and social aspects of the writing process by producing collaborative work and/or feedback for peers and selectively using peer feedback in their own work (Teamwork);
- Demonstrate knowledge of organizational and linguistic structures – including grammar, punctuation, and spelling – through practice in composing and revising (Communication);
- Compose texts in response to a variety of situations and contexts calling for purposeful shifts in voice, tone, level of formality, design, medium, and/or structure (Communication).

Core Curriculum Objectives
Critical Thinking Skills: To include creative thinking, innovation, inquiry, and analysis, evaluation and synthesis of information.

Objective will be addressed with active reading assignments, writing assignments that teach process, analysis, reflection, and working with sources, writing and reading assignments that teach rhetorical awareness, including writing for different purposes, audiences, and contexts.

Communication Skills: To include effective development, interpretation, and expression of ideas though written, oral, and visual communication.
Objective will be addressed with writing and reading assignments that teach rhetorical awareness, including writing for different purposes, audiences, and contexts.
Teamwork: To include the ability to consider different points of view and to work effectively with others to support a shared purpose or goal.

Objective will be addressed with peer writing groups and small-group work.

Personal Responsibility: To include the ability to connect choices, actions and consequences to ethical decision-making.

Objective will be addressed by activities and discussions that teach the ethics of rhetoric and research.

Students with Disabilities
(Students with special needs should conference with the instructor ASAP.) To obtain disability related accommodations, alternate formats and/or auxiliary aids, students with disabilities must contact the Office of Disability Services (ODS), Human Services Building, and Room 325, 468-3004 / 468-1004 (TDD) as early as possible in the semester. Once verified, ODS will notify the course instructor and outline the accommodation and/or auxiliary aids to be provided. Failure to request services in a timely manner may delay your accommodations.
